

Character reference for Graeme Boyd

I have known Graeme Boyd in a personal capacity for 15 years and would thoroughly recommend him as a person and employee.

Graeme is enthusiastic, inquisitive and has a very positive approach to working with those around him, whether as part of a team or on his own. He has a thirst for knowledge which is second to none. He is well-travelled, has a strong global outlook and has worked in a variety of challenging roles from teaching basic numeracy and literacy to prisoners at Wandsworth Prison in London to helping asylum seekers with relocation and local community issues at Barrhead Library in Glasgow.

In 2002, as part of his Masters in Information Science at The University of Strathclyde, he voluntarily worked at the Scottish Parliament Information Centre (SPICe) in Edinburgh for over 3 months. During this time Graeme helped staff and visitors (including school-groups, teachers and foreign visitors) with research and enquiries.

I would have no hesitation in recommending Graeme for employment within your company or organisation. I deem him to be honest, trustworthy and reliable.
